

Part Number: GSM Autodialer

Description

The GSM autodialer provides a unit equipped with output relays that can also be programmed to call up to nine different numbers and play a pre-recorded message to each person who answers, until one of them acknowledges the message by pressing the * or # key on their phone, whenever it is triggered by the monitoring unit's output relays. The unit can also be programmed to send SMS messages rather than a phone call, it can play one of two different messages, depending on which trigger input is activated, and can call certain numbers for one trigger vs. another. It also has a built-in audible alarm, is able to dial out even while running on battery power, and can be programmed to send out a periodic "test" message to verify that the unit is operating properly.
